

Referencing and Plagiarism Guide

What is plagiarism?

“Plagiarism is presenting someone else’s work or ideas as your own, with or without their consent, by incorporating it into your work without full acknowledgement.”

(University of Oxford)

Referencing/Citing Sources:

There are two main types of referencing you can use in your presentation:

Numbering and footnotes

Parenthesis and bibliography

How do I make sure I’m not doing it?

Use paraphrasing and referencing.

Alexander (2013) strongly suggests that it would be wrong to remove talk from the study of English.

Use direct quotation and referencing.

“To remove talk from English would be both categorical nonsense (how can the study of English include reading and writing but not talk?) and pedagogical folly” (Alexander, Robin John, 2013)

Use a combination of both.

Alexander (2013) strongly suggests that it would be wrong to remove talk from the study of English, calling the idea ‘nonsense’ and ‘folly’.

Include a bibliography.

Useful Links and Guides:

<https://guides.library.uq.edu.au/referencing/uqharvard-version-for-printing>

